After you apply tags, you can retrieve all the resources in your subscription with that tag name and value. Tags enable you to retrieve related resources from different resource groups. This approach is helpful when you need to organize resources for billing or management.

Selected Answer: A

A is the answer.

https://learn.microsoft.com/en-us/azure/azure-resource-manager/management/tag-resources?tabs=json#tags-and-billing
You can use tags to group your billing data. If you're running multiple VMs for different organizations, for example, use the tags to group usage by cost center. You can also use tags to categorize costs by runtime environment, such as the billing usage for VMs running in the production environment.

Resource tags are another way to organize resources. Tags provide extra information, or metadata, about your resources. This metadata is useful for:
- Cost management and optimization Tags enable you to group resources so that you can report on costs, allocate internal cost centers, track budgets, and forecast estimated cost.

Selected Answer: A

About Tag, if you Tag a resource group, the itens in it doen't receive the Tag, you should Tag one by one. Not be confused about permitions, when those itens receive the permition set to the resource Group´.
