Correct answer - ARM is just a template for deployment , policy/policies are just the rules that you can create and apply -you cannot use a rule to deploy - you use a common platform-ARM

I think the keywords are platform and deploy. Policies do not help deploy items with Azure but ARM with templates allows us to do that. So ARM with Templates should be the right answer.

The keyword is consistency. That's why correct answer is C.

After checking out on the web, considering the key words "Platform" and "Deploy", I consider ARM as the correct answear.

Users can access Compliance Manager by signing into their Office 365, Dynamics 365, or Azure user account via the Service Trust Portal. This new compliance solution is designed to help organizations meet their data protection and regulatory requirements while using Microsoft cloud services.

Users with Azure AD identities who don't have Office 365 or Microsoft 365 subscriptions won't be able to access Compliance Manager in the Microsoft 365 compliance center. Users will need at least the Compliance Manager reader role, or Azure AD global reader role, to access Compliance Manager.
