The statement is incorrect. The Developer support plan is the lowest cost option to receive access to support engineers by email during business hours1.

So the correct answer to your question is B. Developer.

A is correct , Standard support is the lowest cost option to recieve 24x7 access to engineer via phone, Developer which is a cheaper support option only gets Engineer support via email only during business hours and not by Phone.

I got the book, this answer is wrong, the answer is B....."All paid support plans offer access to Microsoft support engineers"

The DEVELOPER plan (Answer B) only include email technical support during business hours. STANDARD plan covers 24/7.

Based on the options given the answer should be Professional Direct. Developer is not 24/7 access to engineers by phone. People need to read the questions carefully.
