I would argue that if you need to claim for it not all Azure customers will receive the credit as not all customers will claim.

overthinking it. But technically all paying customers CAN receive that credit. if they claim it or not, not Microsoft's problem.

I think this question is outdated, I checked the most recent SLA on <https://www.microsoft.com/licensing/docs/view/Service-Level-Agreements-SLA-for-Online-Services?lang=1> and it has the same SLA for 'Azure Active Directory Basic and Azure Active Directory Premium' Free and P2 aren't listed anymore. Answer to 2nd question should be YES.

YNY is the answer.

We guarantee 99.99% availability of the Azure Active Directory Basic and Premium services. The services are considered available in the following scenarios:

- Users are able to login to the Azure Active Directory service.
- Azure Active Directory successfully emits the authentication and authorization tokens required for users to log into applications connected to the service.

No SLA is offered for the Free edition of Azure Active Directory.

Basic is same as Free. You only have 3 tiers for Azure AD i.e, Free (Basic), P1, & P2. So, answers need to be adjusted accordingly.

   upvoted 1 times

  JustSignalingVirtues 2 years, 5 months ago

All 3 tiers of AAD has same availability.
BTW, SLA topics are removed from new exam as per the new objectives published on May 5th 2022.

It is actually 99.99% available so the answer is N due to lack of one nine

  Algasibiur 2 years, 11 months ago

Dude, it's says "At least 99.9". That means  $\geq 99.9\%$ .
According with Microsoft's SLA it's 99.99% and that mean that this question it's true.

From the link you provided, it is said "We guarantee at least 99.9% availability of the Azure Active Directory BASIC and PREMIUM services. No SLA is provided for the FREE tier of Azure Active Directory."

So the answer to the second one is NO.

The question is again vague... you need to enter a claim if performance is below SLA, it won't be automatic. Si I would say NO to 3rd one.
